This map indicates areas that are likely to be damaged in landslides caused by heavy rain and earthquakes, areas that are likely to be flooded if the Mukogawa River breaks its banks, and locations of emergency shelters. Areas and places that are at risk of landslide are designated according to Hyogo Prefecture survey criteria, but depending on rainfall patterns and earthquake level, places not indicated here may also suffer landslide damage. Additionally, changes in topography that have occurred since the survey are not reflected in this map, so please act with care. Mountain streams, slopes, areas downstream, and other areas that are determined to be likely to suffer landslide damage are surveyed by Hyogo prefecture and designated as areas likely to be damaged by landslides (landslide damage potential zones - yellow zones).

This map shows areas prone to flooding and emergency shelter information in the cases of overflow of the Mukogawa River. The areas prone to flooding and depth in case of overflow of Mukogawa River show the flood simulated assuming that heavy rain equal to daily rainfall of 247mm (heavy rainfall that occurs once approximately every 100 years) falls in the Mukogawa River Basin, causing the Mukogawa River to rise, overflowing its bank. This map is originated from the Hyogo Prefecture CG Hazard Map.
